Prince Frederick Charles, One of Prussia's Greatest Commanders, Whose Death Occurred Recently Ne Potsdam---His Distinguished Services in the Austro-Prussian, Franco-Prussian and

Other Wars.

F The death of Pr noe Frederick Charles of Prossia took place at his palace near Potedam, Jone 15th, 1885. Di the death of Prince Frederick Charles, known as the "Red Prince," Germany loses one of her ab est and most intrapid commanders. Born March 20th, 1828, he was sent to'a military school, and there dis-tinguished himself by his enthusiasm tinguished himself by his enthusiasm for his studies. In 1848 he passed from the theoretical to the practical by being assigned to the staff of General Von Wrangel during the first Schleswig-Holstein war. In this conflict he distinguished homself for his gallantry. In 1849 he served on the staff of his uncle, the present Emperer of Germany, then Prince William of Prussia. At Wissen-Prince William of Prussia. At Wiesenthal, at the head of eighty-seven Royal Prussian Hussars, Prince Charles captured 400 Badenese infantry. This raised the conflictors of his soldiers to almost personal devotion. During the next fifteen years the Prince resumed his studies of the theory of war and when war wardeclared by Prussia and Austria against Danmark, was given charge of the Prussian Division, December 15th, 1863. He besieged the town of Duffel, and in April, 1864, bombarled it, and afterwards ordered an attack. Twice were the Prussians repulsed, when the were the Prussians repulsed, when the Prince, grasping the fing of the Royal Guards, sprang to the front and person-ally led his troops to the third and successful attack During the Austro-Prussian war of 1866 after a succession of splendid victories he won the battle of Sadowa, and was ready to march on Vianna when the treaty of peace was signed. At the outbreak of the Francofigured. At the onto the second forman war he was given command of the Second German Army. He won the battle of Speichern and invested Metz, which surrendered October 27th, 1870. Bazine delivered 150 000 prisoners to the victor. The Prince recaptured Or-leans and drove General Chanzy to the northward. In October, 1870, he was made Field Marshall in recognition of his services in capturing Metz.

Judicial Councillof Warriors at Alliance. Strikem Barrick, Smoothface Taylor, Sycamore Tipton, Cyclone Donaldson, Bigtalk Butler, Bighat Eckley, Littlehat Eckley, Groundhog Ross, Bigfee Adams and many other palefaced statesmen from the school-district of Carroll coun ty went to Alliance last Tuesday, or overed around the horizon of the afore said city. The majority were under the leadership of their old chief, Jiboway Hiawatha Tripp, who was seeking an extension of his power over larger and more powerful reservations, wherein live two be-witching squaws, Mollie Stark and Columbia Jane—whose people are mighty in peace and war and extel in the manufacture of here and pottery. Here our ufacture of beer and bottery. Here our simple-hearted chief and warriors met hosts and hosts of brave and trusty warhosts and hosts of brave and trusty warziors such as they had not dreamed of in their quiet rail-fence country.

These hosts were led by Lowwool Ambler and Black-nake Baldwin, and strange to relate, four of Chief Tripp's warriors—Smoothface, Sycamore, Littlehat and Groundhog—went over and sat in the lap of Mollie and Columbia. This caused great pain and angulah, as these warriors had been honored in their own senators, and were not carrying out the warriors had been honored in their own country, and were not carrying out the "agreement" made at the last time thiefs Noblood Raley and Jiboway Hiawatha Tripp had sat and smoked to gether. The various clans of all the reservations met in Collega Hall together—viz: those from the principality of Columbia Jane on the right; those from the empire of Mollie Stark on the left, and those from the school-district of Little Carroll filed in among the sutured edges. War was de-among the sutured edges. War was de-slared promptly at 2 o'clock and tomahawks and javelins flow from behind hawks and javelins firm from behind trees, fences and stone walls—enough to scare a poor Democrat out of a year's growth. As the sun was sloking in the west the warriors of Lowwool Ambler triumphed, much to the satisfaction of Blacksnake and his warriors. Then there was mourning among the decimated ranks of Chief Tripp and they pawed up Brea flagstones and river blecut and downed great schooners of beer paying many great schooners of beer, paying many mills of tax to grease the wheels of a wicked Democratic administration, They had struck Alliance in the midet They had struck Alliance in the midet of advancing day with heads erect—they left with the retreating sun with tails at an angle of 214 degrees, to the air of Little Bo P-ep. The happy chosen chief of the tri tribes, N.-Napoleon Nichols went home with his mouth clongated at both ends, a dimple in his chin, joy in his heart, and a vivid recollection of 1882. This is the second chapter. The first chapter was Cyclone and ter. The first chapter was Cyclone and Bigtalk trying to drink Sycamore drunk at Alliance. The third chapter is in such horrid cusswords that we shall have fears for the rye crop in Car-roll county next year. The fourth chap-ter will be on the second Tuesday of next October when the Carroll county tribes shall crawl in the dust and give Nichols 600 majority. When shall these three tribes meet again In what, in thunder or in rate? When the hurly-burly's done, When the Democratic Judge has won -These three shall most ag-most illustrious of the great German generals, died at Carlsbad June 17 h, 1885, of pulmonary congestion. Edwin Hans Carl Baron Von Manteufel was the son of the President of the Superior Court of Madgabourg, and was born in that city February 24th, 18th, At the age of seventeen he entered the Dra-goons of the Guard. In 1848 he became Aide-de-Camp to the King. He was made Colonel in 1854 and Aljutant-General in 1851. The alliance of Prussia and Aus-tria for the liberation of the Eibe provinces was mainly due to his exertions, and accordingly in January, 1864, he was sent to Vienna to propose energetic measures of war against Denmark. In February he was sent to Schleswig-Holstein and was present at the battle of Missunde and conducted the operations which led to the occupation of Jutland. which led to the occupation of Julland, On August 22d, 1865, as a result of the Gastein Convention, he was made Gov-ernor of Schleswig and commander of the Prussian troops in Holstein. In the war with Austria in 1866, he command-ed the Army of the Main and took part in the fights of Hausen-Halmstaft, Vat-tingen, Rossbrum and Wurzburg, On September 9th, 1866, after having been sent on a diplomatic mission to Russia, he was made Commander of the Ninth he was made Commander of the Ninth Army Corps, but in January, 1867, was released from the duty and settled in Naumberg to obtain rest. In 1868 he was made General in command of the First Army Corps, and led it to the field in 1870-71, assisting in the siege of Metz. Transferred to the south of France he outfinked the army of Bourbaki and so completely defeated it as to force it to flee across the mountains into Switzerland. In 1871 he was made Commander-in-Chief of the army of occupation. As a reward for his services he was made a Prussian Field Marshal. In 1876, upon the outbrak of the Turco-Russian war, he was offered command of the Russian
